NOTES

DESCRIPTION

This exceptional property is located between Barjac and Saint-Ambroix, in the north of the Gard department.

The château offers 657 m² of living space.

The history of this castle dates back to the 14th century. It served as an inn for travelling merchants and a place of trade.

In 1514, the Ribeyrol family was elevated to the nobility and decided to rename the house 'castle'. The castle was enlarged and, since the early 17th century, has had a U-shape (its current form). The ground floor comprises several living areas.
