DESCRIPTION

Nestled against the rock face, the house enjoys two separate entrances: one from the street, leading to the ground floor (entrance hall, toilet, shower room, and utility room); the other at the rear of the house, providing direct access to the kitchen and living area.

Just across from the house, same level as the living room—with no roads to cross—you'll find a 20 sqm workshop and a dedicated room equipped for making your own bread or wood-fired pizzas! Above this area is a large south-facing terrace, partly covered and featuring a barbecue, with an adjacent room perfect for an occasional sleeping area for guests.

In terms of energy, the house is heated by programmable electric inertia radiators (room-by-room control) and a fireplace in the living area, with an insulated attic for added efficiency.
