DESCRIPTION

Located in Kervézennec, in the commune of Maël-Carhaix, this traditional stone building with slate roof offers an excellent opportunity for a full renovation project. The property is arranged in two parts, one measuring approximately 5 m x 10 m and the other around 4 m x 4 m, giving about 66 m² of internal space, set on a cadastral plot of 272 m². The charm of the stonework, the existing footprint and the immediate proximity of the Kervézennec natural site all contribute to its strong potential.

The property requires complete renovation, with an earth floor, roof to be redone and part of the roof structure needing attention, making it ideal for buyers looking for a genuine restoration project. Planning permission granted on 25 October 2023 allows the change of use to residential accommodation and authorises a project creating 87 m² of floor area, while respecting the character of the existing building. The application file also refers to natural wood external joinery, roof windows, alterations to some openings and the creation of a balcony.

Outside, the plot is described as grassed, with hedges and wooded banks, and no major groundworks are planned, helping preserve the simple and natural feel of the setting. Access is directly from the public road and the file mentions one parking space off-road. This is a particularly appealing opportunity for a holiday home, a Breton pied-à-terre or a character property project, thanks to its proximity to the Étang des Sources, walking areas and...
